

Website Intellectual Property Policy

The Foundation believes that knowledge should be shared for the widest possible public benefit. As such, all publicly-available content on sloan.org that the Foundation owns or has a contractual right to share—except the Foundation's name, seal, logo and other registered trademarks—are licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 Unported License.

When displaying or otherwise using Sloan-owned content published under this license, the user must include in a prominent location a statement identifying the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation as the owner of the content, must indicate the content was made available under a Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 Unported License, and must post (if possible) a link to the URL on sloan.org on which the original content appears.

Photographs and other images that appear on the Sloan website and in the Sloan Foundation Annual Report are generally grantee-contributed and not owned by the Foundation. Unless otherwise indicated, images or graphics files are not licensed under a Creative Commons License and the owners of these images retain full licensing rights.

Questions about whether a picture or piece of content on sloan.org belongs to the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation should be directed to the Foundation's Communications Office at 212-649- 1649.

The name "Alfred P. Sloan Foundation" and the Foundation's seal and logo are trademarks owned by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. The Foundation reserves all rights and privileges in connection with these trademarks, and they may not be displayed, transmitted, or otherwise used without the express written permission of the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. To obtain permission to use the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation name, seal, or logo, please contact the Foundation Communications Office at 212-649-1649.

Last revised 01-11-21